

The Construction (Design and Management) Regulations 2015: Overview and implications for clients and their advisors

A one day training course approved by the Association for Project Safety (APS) and the International Institute of Risk and Safety Management (IIRSM)

This hands-on course will help commercial construction clients understand their legal responsibilities under CDM 2015 and how to discharge them in a pragmatic manner.

It will also be a valuable source of support and information to individuals working as clients' in-house health and safety advisors.

The day is divided into 3 logical sections:

- An overview of CDM 2015.
- Client responsibilities in the pre-construction phase.
- Client responsibilities during the construction phase.

The material is brought to life with scenarios, case studies and workshops. Delegates will be guided through a template which can be adapted and used to help them plan and record their approach to managing projects. This includes setting out a client brief, selecting a team that can deliver a healthy and safe project and understanding the information they may need to perform their duties.

For larger clients, it offers the information and insights needed to prepare overarching policies for the management of projects to ensure consistent compliance with CDM 2015 and your own expectations.

Delegates will also leave with clear answers about the new Principal Designer (PD) role, matters to consider in selecting and appointing a PD and the issues to discuss with the PD during the course of the project.

About the trainer

In 2015, Nick Bell MSc IMaPS CFIOSH FIIRSM worked with IIRSM to deliver training events across the UK on the new CDM Regulations. Since then he has designed and delivered APS-accredited training to hundreds of professionals, predominantly architects, engineers and surveyors, who are acting or want to act as Principal Designers. He has worked for construction clients in the public and private sectors in a variety of roles.

Arranging the course

The course can be delivered either in-house (at a cost of £2000 plus VAT) or through open courses (at a cost of £395 plus VAT per delegate). Dates of open courses will be listed on selected websites (including www.aps.org.uk) and publications.

To find out more please contact us:
Email: wietraining@watermangroup.com
Telephone: 0117 937 8200

